“ *One of the fondest memories I have of Brett was when he was a little boy. He would sit on the couch or in a chair & rock himself. With his thumb in his mouth, going back & forth he would eventually fall asleep. He had the longest eyelashes I had ever seen. Brett was the cutest child & grew up a handsome man. He will be sorely missed by all. Rhonda; I can't reach any of you. The phone number I have for you isn't working & Sylvia doesn't answer her home number. “Brett and I attended an Indiana University basketball game together several years ago. We had pretty good seats and was actually sitting near John Cougar Mellencamp, who is a big supporter of Indiana University athletics. Security is very protective of his privacy. Brett wanted a photo of him but security would shew you off if they caught you taking photos. I grabbed Brett's phone and took the photo. Mellencamp caught us and gave us an awful scowl as he looked away. Brett thought this was so funny until we were nearly kicked out of the arena. Every time he would call me, I would answer and he would respond "Is Mellencamp still mad at us?" Just one of many stories I could share. Buddy, I will miss our conversations and your "bad beat" stories at the poke table. I will always cherish our friendship. Until we met again, may God bless you and your family.

“ *Brett has been a true mentor and great friend. This has been a tough week. It marks 20 years since my wife passed away. An event that caused me to look for another career. Brett is the one that had faith and trust in me and hired me. From that day on, he encouraged me, stood behind me and nudged me when needed. I owe my success today to him. I will miss my fishing buddy, sous chef on the BBQ team, mobile command side kick and down right one of the best friends I have ever had. Brett, I love you man!
